

AICON 75 FLY: MOVEMENT TAKES FORM

Aicon present for the first time in Italy the latest model in its Flybridge range during the 47th International Genoa Boat Show

Genoa, 6-14th October, 2007 - Aicon, the Sicilian group that designs and builds luxury motor yachts and is listed on the Star segment of the Milan stock exchange, present for the first time in Italy during the 47th International Genoa Boat Show its new model, the Aicon 75 Fly.

With elegant lines, sophisticated style and innovative design and layout, the Aicon 75 Fly is a yacht that evokes the colour and atmosphere of the Mediterranean. Extreme attention to detail, a desire for excellence and original design ensures harmonious living aboard. There is a sophisticated atmosphere aboard created through beautiful lighting solutions, the use of teak, eco-leather inserts and rich materials.

The wide windows and portholes create a relaxing environment and the perfect platform to admire the sea. There are many private spaces which give life aboard a balance and highlight the pleasure of being at sea.

Aicon 75 Fly takes the key style and concepts of Aicon Yachts a stage further: open, continuous spaces, fluid lines and a design that guarantees each area privacy and autonomy while highlighting the extreme comfort of life aboard. The Aicon 75 offers wellness at sea and harmony with the surroundings as the spaces are designed to create beautiful indoor-outdoor living. The design takes the best functionality and combines it with the unique, elegant Aicon style.

The Aicon 75 Fly is of noted elegance, an aesthetic that combines lightness and density, functionality and comfort and the best use of materials and innovative technology in the build. The new jewel of the Aicon fleet symbolises the luxury and timeless elegance of Aicon yachts.

Exterior – fluid form, harmonious lines

The exterior lines of the Aicon 75 Fly show an elegant, fluid form that accentuates the powerful movement of the yacht, a key Aicon design feature. The continuous lines stretch the length of the yacht, creating a unity between the hull, the sides and the profile of the rollbar.

The generous stern cockpit offers a large divan that doubles as a seat for the dining table and to the right of the large, reflecting door that leads to the living area, there are the stairs that lead to the flybridge.

The bow area, in addition to the traditional sunbathing area, has a table to allow peaceful, open-air drinks and cocktails. A large stowage locker is situated to the bow of the starboard (right-hand) walkway fitting into to the owner's bathroom.

On the spacious, full-beam flybridge, there is an ample C-shaped divan that doubles as a seat for the table, positioned at the centre. The pilot position, also to the centre of the flybridge, has a double seat with a unit behind it that is fully equipped for entertainment and offers an open-air barbeque. To the front of the dashboard, stretches a large and comfortable sun-bathing area.

The living area – Autonomous spaces

The living area of the Aicon 75 Fly is cleverly designed to give the impression of flowing open space but at the same time offers a series of individual areas, each one harmoniously balanced as part of the whole.

Moving from the stern forward, you encounter first a lounge area with two couches positioned to give a conversation nook. Dividing this area from a lunch area is a cabinet with a movable LCD television screen, allowing viewing from both areas. Moving forward there is a galley or kitchen unit that sits alongside an elegant eight-seater glass table.

The galley area, even though it is placed to the centre of the living area, doesn't interrupt the fluid lines of the yacht, allowing an uninterrupted view from the stern to the pilot area, which has a double seat, and to starboard an office area with writing desk.

The same fluidity of space is maintained at the centre of the yacht: the galley has a double opening with sliding doors to port and starboard (the starboard one is optional), guaranteeing visual liberty across the axis of the yacht and ensuring excellent ventilation.

The living and the deck areas are finished with leather inserts in the furniture, adding a touch of rich elegance and offering continuity of style throughout the yacht, from the bow to the stern and below decks.

Below decks – luminous and private

The area below decks is accessed by stairs towards the bow, situated between the pilot station and the office area. The stairs lead down to a landing of around 1.5 meters square which serves as a dressing area.

Moving towards the bow there is a corridor with two symmetrical guest cabins, with twin beds, identical in area and in layout. Both cabins have ensuite bathrooms with showers and fitted wardrobes. To the centre of the yacht, there is the spacious owner's suite, which takes advantage of the full beam of the yacht. The light, airy cabin is illuminated by a stylish rounded porthole, a characteristic of Aicon, and offers a walk-in wardrobe, beauty unit and writing desk looking out of the porthole. A large ensuite bathroom becomes part of the suite and offers twin basins with a hydro-massage shower that can be separated by a sliding door to the right. The heads are situated towards the stern and accessed by a separate door.

To the bow there is the VIP cabin with a large wardrobe, couches and a separate bathroom. The spacious crew quarters to the stern are accessed from the exterior and offer two cabins - a single and a double – either side of a common bathroom.
